

Insider reveals recently updated private “hotlist” of over 2900 investors waiting to fund your business idea.

If you have a burning business idea and know that if you can get it in front of an investor, you could win his interest and get him to fund your idea...then I know I can help you.

Listen...

Over the years I've worked myself to the bone, building a contact list over 2900 investors... and I still keep myself in the front line trenches keeping it up to date. This list doesn't just contain their names. It also contains:

- Their email addresses
- Their phone numbers
- and in some cases, their postal addresses

Here's what this means to you:

This type of classified information lets you put your idea directly in front of your idea investor without jumping through any corporate hoops.

With the right approach and presentation, you can get funding for your project faster than you ever dreamed possible.

What I'm giving you, is...

An Unknown Backdoor To Get Around The Rules And Reach Your Potential Investors.

With this untapped resource, all you need to do to catch your core prospect's attention is something as simple as an email. Or even something as daring as sending a Federal Express package to show them you mean business.

You can send a direct mail campaign to your idea investors and see which one will “bite”.

The possibilities are endless,

What you're receiving, is a chance to take your idea straight to the main decision maker, and line your pocket with funds you need to grow your business.

But this list isn't for “every” business owner.

These investors value their privacy, and I can't reveal their details to everyone who comes asking to the list. If you're going to use this information, you must promise me not to waste their time with half-thought ideas.

This resource is strictly for serious entrepreneurs and business owners. My personal reputation is on the line here, so I have to be careful who I let in on the secret.

Here's how you can get your hands on this “insider secret list”
